Teaching & living with Aloha & in Pono encourages the best from caregivers, teachers, children, families and community members! We understand that quality of care for young children is a concern that cuts to the core of the quality of life for every parent and child.

Our practices and philosophies are rooted in the belief that the primary needs of all children are love, respect and a great deal of attention – this naturally creates a focus on the development of social and emotional literacy (of the children and teaching team). Social and emotional literacy is the foundation to all other literacies as well as a strong indicator of Kindergarten readiness. Our approach is a perfect fit with current understandings of how young children best grow and develop, despite society's apparent obsession with moving formal academic instruction into earlier and earlier ages.

All children are born with a developmental and instinctual desire to connect with nature, explore, discover, and learn. Play is the most effective means to fostering the growth of healthy children in every aspect of development – physically, cognitively, socially and emotionally.

Teachers at Ka Hana Pono facilitate learning by inspiring each child's genuine curiosity and providing the proper balance of guidance and freedom. By building a foundation of loving playfulness and giving each child respect and responsibility, independent choices can be made that inspire the child. In addition, our programs focus on nature, the environment, music and creative arts offers an enhancement to the basic methods of learning & early education experiences.

Our 3 to 5 Year olds group has 12 children.
Our 2 Year olds old group has 6 children.
